Mentions the fulfillment of prophecy regarding the coming of the promised Comforter. Exhorts the purification of hearts from malice, hatred and immorality, and the adornment of the body, soul and speech with truth and fidelity. Describes the longing for creation for Bahá'u'lláh and urges the seekers of truth to recognize and appreciate His divine wisdom. Counsels steadfastness in the love of God and patience in the face of trials. Advises discretion and wisdom in revealing the divine message to unbelievers. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Praises the Creator for nurturing all and revealing himself as the Lord of the Worlds. Describes the Most Exalted station manifested in the Most Great Theophany, blessing all with divine guidance and grace. Acknowledges receipt of two letters, one of which was deferred for a time. Expresses gratitude for divine assistance in turning towards God and witnessing the evidences of divine favor, despite past sins. Prays for God's continued guidance, support, and forgiveness through His mighty favors and signs, and seeks closeness to Him. Assures the recipient of God's encompassing favor and knowledge, recounting their experiences in prison and witnessing divine providence. Encourages recipient to trust in God's knowledge and presence, reminding them that their devotion to the divine is more valuable than worldly wealth or status. Sends greetings to friends and prays for their devotion and adherence to God Almighty. (GPT-4)

 Abstract: Addresses several believers by name. Calls upon them to adhere to God's teachings and avoid being deprived of divine inspiration. Encourages them to be attentive to the utterances of the divine Arabian bird and the Persian songbird. Reminds them to be thankful for the divine favor bestowed upon them. Advises them to prioritize recognizing God and fulfilling His commandments. Urges them to strive in purifying their possessions and aiding others in the path of God without being hindered by the fleeting vanities of the world. Assures the believers that in doing so, they will attain everlasting glory and be adorned with eternal life. (GPT-4)

Mentions those who turned to the divine countenance and describes them as treasured in the celestial realms. Congratulates those who attained nearness to God despite opposition from others and disbelief from the ungodly. Urges devotion to the throne of God and to support it through divine remembrance and exposition. Discusses the denial of access to the Almighty's presence due to the misdeeds of those who strayed and followed false leaders. Encourages believers to remain steadfast while distant and to reflect on God's bounties and blessings. Advises believers to follow God's commandments, cling to His mercy, and hold fast to the cord of unity. Recommends teaching children to read the divine verses and the importance of raising them with knowledge, virtues, and skills. Foresees their eventual happiness and the enjoyment of the "river of everlasting life" (Kawthar al-Hayawan) from the hands of God's bounty. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Directs believers to contemplate the vision of sleep and the mysteries revealed therein. Urges questioning and seeking understanding of the "sublime Manifestation," emphasizing the importance of recognizing the Divine Presence. Describes the profound effects of reaching that station, including hearing the clamor of spiritual battle and feeling a deep sense of sorrow and loss for the denial and oppression faced by the Manifestation of God. Acknowledges the steadfastness of those who remained firm in their faith despite the persecution they faced. Reminds the reader to be grateful for the divine guidance they have received and to beware of the lies and slanders spread by those who reject the truth. Affirms the clarity of truth to those who have witnessed it, likening it to the brightness of the sun at noon. Assures the believer of the support and protection of the Almighty and encourages them in their continued devotion and detachment from the world. (GPT-4)

No spot is left on My body that hath not been touched by the spears of thy machinations...* Abstract: Summons to acknowledge divine mysteries and direct oneself toward God, warning against pride and envy. Describes emotions of sorrow and tears shed by holy messengers and inhabitants of the celestial realm. Counsels the individual to dissociate from those filled with envy, malice, and animosity. Urges the person to purify their heart and soul and to seek true guidance from God. Emphasizes God's protection against adversaries and security in His grasp. Encourages the person to be just, humble, and fearless in the face of challenges, and not to let worldly status or ego hinder their spiritual progress. Advises the person to detach from material things and cleanse their heart of all but the remembrance of God. Shares personal suffering and hardship, with hopes that others may find comfort and inspiration in their trials. Affirms Divine assistance and support, despite adversity and opposition. Offers blessings and divine guidance to all who read the sacred verses and ponder their mysteries. (GPT-4)

For brief commentary by Baha'u'llah see BH03705. Abstract: Treatise addressed anonymously to the entire Persian nation, outlining both the secular and the religious bases of true civilization. Identified by Shoghi Effendi as Abdu'l-Baha's "outstanding contribution to the future reorganization of the world." Presents a defense of Western-style modernization in the face of opposition to the Shah's reforms. Explores the qualities of the spiritually learned through the lens of an Islamic tradition that the learned "must guard himself, defend his faith, oppose his passions and obey the commandments of his Lord". Presents the essential outlines of the Lesser Peace. Argues that religion is the greatest instrument for achieving true civilization, but warns that it can be diverted to the wrong ends. Rejects the possibility of a secular morality based on an "innate sense of human dignity", since "self-love is kneaded into the very clay of man". Issues a call for education reform, borrowing from other cultures as necessary, to restore the ancient glory of Persia.

Question: What is the story of Shaykh Ahmad-i-Ahsá'í and Siyyid Kázim-i-Rashtí, the journey of their disciples to Shiráz, and their declaration of allegiance to the Báb, and how did these events unfold? Trans: BRL_TTT#10. Know that in the latter days the Shí'ahs of Persia had forgotten the truth of the religion of God... Abstract: Explains how the state of Shi'a Muslims in Iran during the end of the Islamic Dispensation led to the emergence of Shaykh Ahmad Ahsá'í and Siyyid Kázim Rashí, the founders of the Shaykhí school. Discusses their teachings on the imminent appearance of the Promised One, noting their spiritual insight and their influence on their followers. Describes the journey of some of Shaykhí followers, including Mulla Husayn (Báb-ul-Báb) in search of the Promised One. Details the recognition of the Báb by Mulla Husayn and the other Letters of the Living. Outlines the roles and the relative ranks of these believers in the early Bábí Faith. Mentions the Báb's teachings about the significance of the number 19 and the profound impact of the revelation on the people. (GPT-4)

Compares tribulations to the testing of gold and students, where refined gold and strong students are not hindered but rather enhanced by tests. Emphasizes the importance of spiritual detachment and asserting that both bodily and spiritual matters are influenced by the Most Great Name. Clarifies that both the realm of dreams and afterlife should be seen as spiritual states rather than physical ones. Advises to focus on the spiritual realm and divine love as the source of life and salvation. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Summarizes the spiritual encounters of religious scholars and leaders with the Manifestation of God in the times of Bahá'u'lláh. Discusses the questions they asked about complex subjects, and how they were instantly answered with satisfying explanations. Reflects on the recognition of the greatness, knowledge, power, and majesty of the Manifestation by people from all walks of life, religious backgrounds, and professions. Mentions the spiritual progress and unity brought about through the new revelation, and the acknowledgment of its importance by scholars and poets of diverse religious sects. Illustrates the wrongful denial and opposition by some individuals, sharing an anecdote about a minister who realized the futility of rejecting the truth when the Manifestation's teachings already spread worldwide. Urges the readers to recognize the greatness of the new revelation, instead of engaging in opposition and denial. (GPT-4)

Expresses 'Abdu'l-Bahá's own state of happiness and tranquility despite many tribulations, and exhorts the believer to persevere and remain strong. Encourages seeking the aid of the Holy Spirit for spiritual power and understanding, as well as for healing both physical and spiritual ailments. Mentions the significance of prayer, the story of Adam and Christ, the city of Akka, the teachings of Buddha, and the importance of steadfast service to the Cause of God. Conveys 'Abdu'l-Bahá's greetings and encouragements to various individuals, hoping for their spiritual progress and success in sharing the divine teachings. (GPT-4)

Trans: BRL_ATE#151, COC#0627. O thou servant of God! Thou didst ask as to the education of children. Those children who, sheltered by the Blessed Tree, have set foot upon the world... Abstract: Instructs the upbringing of children, emphasizing their moral and educational development under divine guidance. Encourages mothers to nurture children with love, cleanliness, and kindness, exhaling the "breeze of God's love." Describes the sequential stages of teaching children reading and writing, including translating words into different languages. Advises that after mastering basic sciences, children should be guided according to their interests and abilities in trade, industry, or academia. Stresses the importance of divine ethics and virtues more than worldly knowledge, declaring a pious but uneducated soul as beneficiary for society, while a well-learned person without piety and good intentions remains harmful. Praises those who possess both divine ethics and worldly knowledge, as they become like "light upon light." (GPT-4)

Abstract: Warns of the attacks on the pure-hearted by aggressors. Describes the persecutions the believers suffer, including plundering of wealth, demolition of homes, and physical harm. Mentions a specific individual, Ibrahim, who was devoted to God and faced intense adversity for his faith. Pleads with God to direct the harm meant for the believers onto himself, so that he may sacrifice for them. Expresses a desire to be liberated from the captivity of this harsh prison and seek solace through sacrifice in service to God. Urges God to protect the faithful and repel the actions of their enemies. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Offers condolences for the loss of the recipient's mother, prays for her spiritual progress, and supplicates for the spiritual growth of the recipient's son. Commends the recipient's eloquent speeches at women's gatherings and the Philosophical Society about the divine teachings. Expresses the desire to compile all Bahá'í teachings into one discourse and encourages sharing these teachings to awaken individuals. Notes that prophecies in Bahá'u'lláh's writings have come true and anticipates the establishment of global peace, which can only be achieved through divine influence. Recalls fondly the time spent in London and the establishment of gatherings in the recipient's home. States that the effects of advocating for women's rights are now evident and advises the recipient to involve daughters in gatherings and to convey greetings to various individuals. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Addresses the believers as the true friends of God, acknowledging the praise and assistance they give to one another. Hopes for their obedience to God's Law and success in their endeavors. Clarifies the significance of the 5th of Jamadiyu'l-Avval as the day of the proclamation of the Bab, not the birthday of 'Abdu'l-Bahá. Warns against deviation from this understanding as it would bring sorrow to 'Abdu'l-Bahá's heart. Urges believers to share this message in all lands to inform others of the true nature of the day. Highlights the importance of adhering to God's laws and not overstepping their boundaries. (GPT-4)*

Abstract: Expresses gratitude for the arrival of Azizullah Khan, Abdul-Hussein Khan, and Ali-Muhammad Khan. Advises focusing on spiritual matters rather than material concerns, which pass like waves in the ocean. Describes the fleeting nature of worldly power and material wealth. Urges contentment in divine blessings and detachment from worldly concerns, as ultimate joy and hope come from God's infinite grace. Sends greetings and affection to Farida, Bahram, and Fereydoun, expressing hope for Fereydoun to become a manifestation of divine favors. Acknowledges service and devotion, assuring of continuing supplication for divine assistance. Expresses the importance of perseverance in seeking knowledge and conveying the message of God. How were these events of the present day discovered in the past? Trans: BRL_TTT#02. The Prophets of God draw upon both His boundless universal grace and upon His particular grace, that is, upon divine revelation and inspiration.... Abstract: Explains the prophetic knowledge of the Prophets by discussing their access to both the general and specific bounties of God through divine revelation and inspiration. Emphasizes that the true foundation of their knowledge lies in the illumination of the light of truth, as past, present, and future are one in the realm of God, where time is not applicable. Compares the Prophets to skilled physicians who discern the pulse of the world, the symptoms of the times, and the future consequences of present events, through their understanding of the spiritual realities and their ability to infer from signs and reflections. Encourages reflection and contemplation on the mysteries of the spiritual realm, as the matter is clear and evident. (GPT-4)

the receipt of her letter and expressing `Abdu'l-Bahá's desire for a future meeting. Explains that every word and movement of the obligatory prayer contains wisdom and mysteries beyond human comprehension. Briefly discusses the topic of having multiple spouses, stating that the actions of the Manifestations of God have their own unique wisdom and should not be compared to those of other individuals. Emphasizes the importance of justice and equality in relationships, and clarifies that the Bahá'í law allows only one wife due to the impossibility of true equality and justice in polygamous relationships. Thy letter hath arrived, and, for want of opportunity, I am now replying to it... Abstract:* Emphasizes the importance of forming an assembly for teaching and spreading the faith. Mentions the elevated status of Bahá'u'lláh's daughter, who, at the age of eighteen, was continually in His service, engaged in prayer and the study of His Teachings. Explains that the Bahá'í women are distinguished by their focus on the spiritual aspects of life and the communication of divine truths, rather than household tasks and idle pursuits. Encourages believers to interpret the miracles of the past, such as recounted in the Old Testament concerning the children of Israel, as metaphorical, while at the same time not rejecting their impossibility. Advises them to avoid negative talk about or disparagement of Aqa Músá and to treat him with courtesy, hoping that God will provide for him and other individuals. Allows the publication of Mírzá Haydar Ali's questions within the Bahá'í community, but warns against sharing them with the general public, as this may lead to resentment and hostility. Urges believers to avoid arguing and disputing with others, particularly religious leaders, and to engage in dialogue with utmost kindness, humility, and courtesy. Reminds them not to resort to harsh language or display arrogance, but rather to see themselves and others as the servants of God, recognizing that some people seek the truth while others remain silent and focus on their personal interests. Trans: LOTW#17. *O handmaid of Bahá! Thy letter was received, and from its contents the earnestness with which thou art serving the Abhá Kingdom became evident... Abstract: Urges the recipient's devotion and service to the divine kingdom, praises the Arabic translation of a book about Tahirih, and recounts the events at Badasht. Describes the scene of Tahirih's entrance to the gathering in her garden, the recitation of the Sura of the Inevitable, and the ensuing commotion among the attendees. Commends the recipient's efforts in composing the aforementioned book and prays for increased dedication and constancy in their service to the Faith. Advises sending copies of this book to Iran discreetly, one at a time, to avoid confiscation by the authorities. Discusses Mr. Poole's case and the establishment of a general assembly in Paris, but postpones meeting and consultation until a later time.
Reports improved health but delays the visit to Paris for the sake of full recovery. Conveys greetings to the recipient's mother and cousin, and mentions reading Mr. Dreyfus's book, intending to send it soon. (GPT-4)*

The pamphlet thou didst compile, appealing to the world of humanity... To contribute toward the cause of these pitiful children, and to protect and care... Abstract: Describes the recent devastating war as an affliction for humanity, like a powerful flood that uproots cities and villages. Mentions that Bahá'u'lláh warned about this event forty years prior and called on the kings and nations to prevent it, but they did not listen. Recounts the catastrophic destruction caused by the war, including millions of people killed, families ruined, and children left orphaned, naked, starving, and without care. Praises a booklet written to encourage assistance for these helpless children, and advises starting the booklet with the statement that supporting and caring for these children is the greatest act of compassion, worship, and a means to please God. Calls on communities, intellectuals, leaders, and philanthropists to have compassion, pay attention, and provide assistance so that these unfortunate children can find some comfort. Abstract: Emphasizes unity among the servants of the Covenant of God, and discourages differences that lead to hypocrisy and discord. Urges all to forget their own understanding and embrace what the Pen of the servant has revealed. Encourages imbibing of the fragrances of meaning from the garden of reality and partaking of the sweetness of divine verses. Advises silence and consultation with 'Abdu'l-Bahá in the face of differences among the friends, and promotes mutual love until a resolution is achieved. Stresses the importance of servitude, humility, and annihilation in the face of the divine beauty, which has permeated 'Abdu'l-Bahá's entire being, and declares that even the highest stations and attributes cannot replace the essence of servitude. Calls on all to recognize this station of servitude for 'Abdu'l-Bahá, which will bring about the unity and joy of the believers. (GPT-4)

Notes the previously inaccessible port now welcomes friends who share good news, with increased hope for continued visits and illumination of the port. Describes progress in faith as souls enter the shadow of God's Word, recite verses of unity, and commit to the Covenant. Asks for perseverance, devotion, and the burning away of doubts. Mentions the impact of recent upheavals and revolutions awakening souls and spreading the teachings of the Faith. Highlights the fulfillment of prophecies from Bahá'u'lláh's Holy Book and Tablet of the Temple, and the clarity of various communications, after fifty years. Acknowledges widespread acceptance of Bahá'u'lláh's teachings as the source of spiritual progress and well-being. Points out that twelve of the fourteen principles set forth by the League of Nations were established by Bahá'u'lláh fifty years prior. Urges all believers to rise in guiding others, assuring divine assistance and heavenly blessings. (GPT-4)

In all the Divine Dispensations the eldest son hath been given extraordinary distinctions... Such laws as are not mentioned in the Book must all be referred to the House of Justice and not to Abdu'l-Baha... Abstract:* Describes a striking occurrence of a letter and its response being sent and received simultaneously between the writer and 'Abdu'l-Bahá. Mentions the importance of the first-born son in religious texts, including the Torah and the Gospels, as well as in the traditions and laws of various nations, particularly in regards to inheritance. Explains that writing a will is the foundation and essential principle of the Baha'i teachings on inheritance, empowering individuals to distribute their wealth according to their wishes while observing justice and fairness. States that matters not mentioned in the Baha'i Holy Texts are referred to the Universal House of Justice, which will have authority to legislate on issues not explicitly addressed in the Writings. Urges the believers to focus on spreading the divine fragrances, elevating the Word of God, and treating others with patience, kindness, and forbearance. Assures that the Universal House of Justice will resolve any outstanding issues and questions. (GPT-4)

Explains the current state of war occupying the minds of people, making it difficult for the promotion of the Cause. Assures of the assistance of the Bahá'ís in the publication and future recognition of her book. Encourages patience for Iran to develop the capacity for spiritual recognition. Describes how this process exists in all particles, leading to the renewal and transformation of existence. Provides examples of this process in the inanimate, plant, animal, and human worlds. Emphasizes the necessity of this cycle for renewal, progression, and the maintenance of the natural order in creation. Explains that pain and death are expressions of dissolution and transition from one state to another. Conveys that the death of living beings, rather than being a demotion, results in the renewal and transfer of their composition to a new form, ultimately maintaining the interconnectedness and harmony of all things. Mentions the increased interest of a Russian dignitary and recommends sending him certain translated materials, such as writings of Mirza Abu'l-Fadl and other Bahá'í texts. Advises to obtain these materials from friends in Paris, including Mr. Dreyfus. Encourages utmost kindness towards the Russian lady and efforts to attract her to divine fragrances. Expresses pleasure and satisfaction with the addressee's service to the Cause and hope for their continued success. Recommends addressing the issue of agitation in a moderate and non-adversarial manner. Urges the addressee to maintain cordial relations and utmost respect towards Tolstoy, hoping that he may open his eyes to justice. Abstract: Captures an individual's spiritual journey, from being freed from the darkness of ignorance to witnessing the light of guidance, and attaining the presence of God. Encourages spiritual growth, like a bird unfurling its wings in the infinite divine atmosphere. Advises service to God and devotion to the path of truth. Mentions greetings to Mary Virginia, Emmet Alice Lundy, Pauline Hannen, and others, while emphasizing the importance of gratitude for divine guidance. Reminds that acts of goodness are acceptable in the eyes of God, regardless of one's awareness of their actions – like a tree being unaware of its fruit yet still bearing desirable nourishment. However, awareness adds perfection and fullness to one's deeds. Concludes with a prayer beseeching God for spiritual awakening, detachment from all but Him, infusion of the Holy Spirit, release from all bonds, and guidance to serve others by awakening dormant souls, quenching the thirsty with the water of life, and healing the sick with divine remedies. Acknowledges one's humility and dependence on God, seeking His assistance and power to amaze all in this journey. (GPT-4)

sent years ago after Bahá'u'lláh's ascension, which addresses the need for obedience to government and the exclusion of religious leaders from political affairs. Regrets that its contents were not widely disseminated, resulting in religious leaders gaining control and causing tragic events. Encourages wide sharing of the epistle's contents now, without revealing the source, to awaken people to the Bahá'í aims supporting sovereignty. Surely, all must today be called to love, to unity and to kindness... Abstract:* Rejoices at the joy experienced during the celebration of Naw-Ruz. Mentions the divine happiness observed in the assembly, and suggests that earthly gatherings could not experience such joy. Prays for an increase in attraction and ignited love for God, turning the land into a heavenly paradise. Expresses being aflame while writing the letter, urging the reader to become like a blaze and melt in the flame of God's love. Mentions the intention to have the Holy Book translated carefully and sent when circumstances permit. Sweetly speaks of those who endure divine tests and how they become manifestations of God's all-encompassing gifts, though divine tests may make some souls despondent and elevate others. Sends respectful greetings to Dr. Fīzārād and his family. Emphasizes the need for those who are dedicated to following divine teachings and who serve selflessly to become centers of light, radiating beams of guidance and illuminating their surroundings. Urges the reader to strive for unity, love, kindness, truthfulness, peace, friendship, justice, and service, and prays for her and her husband to become shining lights in this world and resplendent stars in the eternal horizon. Trans: BRL_ATE#112x. ...Our hope is that the Spiritual Assembly of Rangoon may shine resplendent and become as delightful as the highest heaven... Abstract: Recounts receiving previous letter, expresses remembrance, and gratitude for the services of recipient and Áqá Siyyid Ismá'íl in spreading the Faith in India. Mentions that the Holy Land remains in the same condition, and the matter is still under discussion in the main city. Discusses the efforts of opponents in propagating false accusations and conspiracies, but asserts reliance on God and submission to His will. Expresses desire for spiritual gatherings to be vibrant and focused on promoting the Word of God, and prays for light to shine on the region and divine guidance to be spread. Concludes with a prayer for blessings on the family and affiliates of the recipient. (GPT-4)

Highlights the importance of spiritual vigor in spreading God's teachings and encouraging transformation in others. Reminds of the ultimate impermanence of this life and the need to utilize one's energy while still capable. Asserts that despite various trials and tribulations, the ultimate proof is shown through steadfastness and perseverance. Abstract: States the Bahá'ís have no connection with political issues, not supporting either constitutionalism or independence, and praying for the well-being of all sects and people of various opinions. Declares Bahá'ís have no animosity with any party and seek the peace and unity of the whole world, rather than conflict and division. Urges obedience to the government and the well-wishing of all kings and subjects. Highlights the lofty goal of illuminating the horizons with the light of harmony and uniting the East and West like two lovers embracing each other. Refuses to get involved in minor disputes between two factions, and expresses well-wishing and guidance for both sides in the hope that the government and nation will unite like sugar with milk. Laments that they expect a tyrant to emerge as the embodiment of truth rather than a manifestation of spiritual perfections and divine lights, who will bring life and hope, rather than despair and death. Urges the reader to walk in the path of truth, practice kindness to all people, bring sweetness and love to humanity, and be sources of solace and healing. Encourages a focus on nurturing others and creating a just and compassionate world. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Praises the devoted follower of Bahá'u'lláh, Kikhusraw, who showed loyalty and was steadfast in the teachings. Describes his soul as ascending to the heavenly realms and his spirit shining in the eternal world. Calls for his friends and family to take pride and give thanks for his sacrifices in the path of truth. Uses imagery of a fragrant scent, tested gold, and intense love to describe Kikhusraw. Expresses hope that `Abdu'l-Bahá may follow in his path of love and devotion. Prays for God to nurture this beloved friend, grant him everlasting glory and heavenly gifts, and offer support, patience, and solace to his loved ones in their time of loss. (GPT-4)

Mentions the history of the Caucasus as a region where ancient prophets resided and spread spiritual teachings. Refers to Hafez Shirazi's poem about the region, touching upon its spiritual significance. Notes the presence of Zoroaster in the area and the symbolic meanings of the Caucasus in Iranian culture. Expresses hope for the spread of divine teachings there. Discusses the unity and harmony among the different religious groups in Baku during wartime, attributing their loving relationships to divine teachings. Encourages them to strive for unity, love, and affection, and to help enlighten the hearts and dispel darkness. Calls for unity among religious groups and the creation of a joyous atmosphere to enliven the region and neighboring countries. (GPT-4)

Musical interps: David, Lucas, Milan & Malise. Abstract: Urges spiritual education, growth and service, comparing true seekers to fruitful trees, widening fountains of knowledge, and sunlit particles. Invokes the attainments of an ant in interpreting the Qur'an and encourages greater dedication to comprehend inner realities and mysteries of the Day of God. Calls for sharing healing knowledge and spiritual insights, becoming divine physicians and awakening the spiritually unaware. Concludes with the ultimate purpose of existence and a blessing. Abstract: Urges acceptance of intercessions for one's father, highlighting the unique attribute of this great era. Reassures the individual not to be saddened by their father's passing, as all will eventually transition to the next world, and the true importance lies in attaining eternal connection and love in the divine realm. Encourages the individual to strive for happiness and success in the next world by having faith and sacrificing in the path of God. Sends greetings to all believers and notes that Chicago was favored among American cities until the "odor of violation" spread, causing stagnation, while other cities continued to progress. Calls for the spread of the fragrance of commitment and spiritual aromas, the waving of the banner of divine knowledge, and the raising of the tent of human unity, which will transform Chicago into a heavenly garden. Asserts that those devoid of the spirit of covenant are considered dead and will eventually fade away, advising the individual to breathe the spirit of covenant into their hearts for continuous progress and renewal. Abstract: A mystic poem in Turkish explores the state of spiritual intoxication, surrender, and sacrifice in the realm of love. Describes the entwining locks of the Beloved as snares, and the black mole as a seedbed, for the bird of the heart. Portrays self-adornment as fruitless when it comes to understanding the mysteries of love. Emphasizes the transformative power of love that can turn ruins into flourishing gardens. Depicts the pain and longing of the lover in terms of lamentation, and their tears as offerings to the Beloved. Highlights love as a sacrificial altar for those who are faithful. Acknowledges the potency of the Beloved's glance, as weak eyes cannot bear it. The poem sees the realm of love as having its own kings, revelers, and intoxicated companions, while the physical world, too, has its castles and taverns for the sober and the drunk. Finally, pays tribute to the sacrifice of Husayn, the Shah of Martyrs, whose pure body was torn to pieces and whose throat was struck by the dagger, but who remained loyal to love. (GPT-4)

Abstract:* Exhorts the believer to spread the divine teachings with such vigor that Russia is stirred into motion. Relates his own efforts, expresses hope to be even more sacrificial in the cause, and desires to witness his eventual martyrdom. Encourages the believers, especially Mirza Ali-Akbar, to be in harmony and partnership in their efforts, and to exert their utmost in the path of God. Conveys greetings to Sheikh Ali Akbar, refers to the numerous hardships faced, and suggests that the believer should also partake of this cup of tribulations. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Urges remembrance of one imprisoned for the Cause of God, whose heart is detached, soul longing, tongue eloquent, spirit humble, and prayers earnest. Describes the chains on the captive's neck as causing a flood of tears, and the shackles on their feet igniting a fire of sorrow. Recognizes the divine nature of the captivity, seeing the chains as celestial messages and the iron collar as a new yearning in the glorious horizon. Congratulates the captive on their unique blessings, elevated station, and intimate companionship with the Divine in their prison. Notes that even in captivity, they are focused on helping others, and calls upon those who are free to assist the imprisoned. Acknowledges the detachment and self-sacrifice of the chosen ones of God. (GPT-4)

Abstract:* Emphasizes upheaval affecting all people who are anxious and disordered in both cities and rural areas due to fears of warships suddenly attacking. Expresses gratitude for being under the shadow of divine protection and engaged in guarding the holy shrine while remembering God. Requests divine assistance and support for friends, acknowledges receipt of a letter from Izabella Grinevskaya, and suggests that offering assistance in the publication of her book will be an encouragement. Explains that individual capacities and motivations differ, and they should be considered accordingly, emphasizing the importance of seeking nearness to God as the ultimate reward. (GPT-4)

Devote ye particular attention to the school for girls... Abstract:* Urges high resolve and noble aims in educating children, both boys and girls, as this is of utmost importance. Applauds the establishment of a strong foundation and firm basis in 'Ishqábád, the first Mashriqu'l-Adhkár, becoming a center for Bahá'í sciences and arts. Emphasizes the importance of education for girls, as the progress of the world of women contributes to the manifestation of greatness and nobility. Recommends initiating education with religious teachings, followed by other sciences after instilling love for the One True God in children's hearts. Expresses hope for the expansion of education in various locations and that children reach the highest aspirations. (GPT-4)

Abstract:* Acknowledges the successful journey to Tehran, bringing joy to the friends and increased vitality for the traveler who remained protected during turbulent times. Advises to trust in the continuous confirmations from the divine realm, and send brief letters to Aqa Mirza Nasrullah Jahromi and Aqa Mirza Ahmad Tajer Qazvini. Encourages the youth to follow the example of their spiritual forefathers, and water the seeds of their teachings. Calls for the spiritual illumination of the younger generation, so they become enveloped by divine confirmations, experience increasing support, and be constantly revived by the breaths of the Holy Spirit. Instructs the youth to follow the example of Hazrat Hakim and be educated in his ways, ascend to the divine realm, and assume the positions of their forefathers, so that these blessings may continue to multiply and bear fruits in both worlds. It is recorded in eastern histories that Socrates journeyed to Palestine and Syria and there... Abstract: Mentions Socrates' journey to Palestine and Syria, where he learned of divine unity and the survival of souls after death from divine scholars, which went against the beliefs of ancient Greeks. Notes that while many events are not recorded in Jewish history, their absence does not disprove their occurrence. Mentions the principle of retribution for a murderer, stating that if the murderer is killed, divine justice will not inflict a second punishment. Advises against sharing personal dreams in gatherings, instead encouraging the recitation and discussion of Bahá'u'lláh's writings, the proofs of divine revelation, and news from other places. Abstract: Acknowledges Aristotle's limited achievements in understanding metaphysics and material sciences but highlights the significant progress made by later generations. Emphasizes the greatness of this era, as the age of truth and divine unity, where even children are more advanced in knowledge than past philosophers. Expresses gratitude for being born in such a time, witnessing the unfolding of sciences and the emergence of new discoveries in various fields. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Expresses hope for the healing and comfort of a dear friend. Acknowledges the difficulties of the journey to India, but expects its outcome to manifest divine gifts and to become a magnet for grace and assistance. Urges steadfastness and patience in the face of the opposition and arrogance of ignorant ones, anticipating that bitter experiences will ultimately become sweet, and the heat of their fiery torment will be transformed into the water of life. Conveys greetings from the Divine Presence to all the friends, promises that desired letters will be written, and explains that physical weakness had temporarily hindered the ability to write and communicate spiritually. Reports that a response to the letters of Ali Akbar has been given, but acknowledges the perception of delay when eagerly awaiting a reply. (GPT-4)

Abstract:* Urges the establishment of a school for the education of girls, emphasizing the importance of moral and spiritual training. Compares children to young saplings, requiring proper care and guidance to grow straight and strong. Warns against the negative influence of certain European teachers, who may teach useful skills but may also instill pride and arrogance in their students, leading them to disrespect their parents and elders. Encourages the development of humility, obedience, and submission in the girls, so that they become sources of comfort and happiness for all. (GPT-4)

Conveys greetings to notable individuals, encouraging their efforts in serving humanity and spreading the light of divine knowledge. Advises unity, cooperation, and connecting hearts among believers, so that they shine like stars in a dark world, teaching all nations the etiquette of love, kindness, and empathy. Urges believers to quench the thirst of the spiritually thirsty, provide sustenance for the hungry, heal the hearts of the sick, and raise the downtrodden to eternal honor. Sends respectful greetings to all servants of the Merciful and friends of God. (GPT-4)

None. Abstract: Emphasizes the importance of the spiritual assembly's approval for promoting the faith among women. Advises that women promoters should be wise, dignified, and well-versed in the proofs and secrets of the Holy Book. Suggests observing each person's doubts and addressing them accordingly. Recommends starting with light conversations, gradually encouraging curiosity, and being discreet in sharing secrets, especially with those who fear public attention. Expresses approval on a historical account but advises refining expressions and phrases to be in tune with the times. Urges the believers to exert great efforts in teaching the faith during these days. (GPT-4)

During the days when thou wast present here...* Abstract: Affirms that the Mashriqu'l-Adhkár should be separate from its treasury but a designated area for financial assistance is acceptable. States that funds should be allocated according to the decision of the Universal House of Justice. Clarifies that the term for Local Spiritual Assembly members is five years before the establishment of the Universal House of Justice. Explains that Assembly members can resign and decisions can be made when more than half are present. Notes that the chairperson has the right to two votes. Emphasizes that these rules are subject to change upon the establishment of the Universal House of Justice. (GPT-4)

Describes the fragrances of spiritual life as imperceptible to the heedless, ignorant, and stagnant. Celebrates the believers' clear vision and receptive hearts, and counsels gratitude and active promotion of divine effusions. Encourages partaking of the cup of purity, shining like a candle, and kindling like a blazing fire in the secure valley. Envisions the illumination of the Caucasus, transforming them into abodes of divine birds and creatures symbolizing unity. Concludes with the hope that the region, revitalized by the breaths of the Everlasting, will become a heavenly paradise. (GPT-4)

Know thou that the distinction between male and female is an exigency of the physical world... Abstract:* Addresses the spiritual equality of men and women, emphasizing that there is no difference or distinction between them in terms of spiritual qualities and abilities. States that the one who has ignited the fire of love for God, entered into the mysteries of God, and dedicated themselves to service, peace, love, and unity is superior, regardless of gender. Explains that creation is eternal, and the beginning mentioned in sacred texts refers to the spiritual rebirth. Quotes from the Gospels about those born of the flesh and those born of the spirit. Clarifies that God's sovereignty is eternal and His creation serves to manifest His attributes, such as being the Creator, Provider, and Ruler. Concludes that the holy books refer to spiritual creation and the second birth. (GPT-4)

Abstract:* Commemorates the Martyrdom of the Báb, describing His loss as the disappearance of the Sun of Truth behind the clouds of absence, the eclipse of the radiant moon, and the defilement of His pure body with dust and blood. Depicts His heart as a stainless mirror pierced by a thousand bullets, and the Divine Lamp leaving its bodily glass. Highlights the lament of the celestial realm, and the tears and sorrowful cries of the inhabitants of the heavenly kingdom. Mentions involvement in writing, organizing, pilgrimage to the Holy Threshold, receiving American pilgrims, and interacting with the friends. Abstract: Addresses the inhabitants of the celestial realm, who, though dwelling on earth, truly reside beneath heaven's canopy. Describes their state as tasting "sweet honey" in the "shadow of the luminous light" and being the object of the Beloved's attention. Exhorts them to be not silent but to respond to divine assistance, spiritual gifts, and the call of the Unseen Realm. Encourages partaking generously of His bounty, raising the banner of triumph, drinking from life-giving cups, praising in the garden of Psalms, and planting seeds of service. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Instructs the recipient to embody the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh in their actions and attitude, highlighting the importance of organizing a spiritual assembly. Mentions a possible interaction with Tolstoy after an Armenian individual corrects errors in their book, though noting Tolstoy's recognition of the Cause may be difficult. Advises ensuring the same Armenian individual recants their false statements made against the Faith, confirming that they are baseless fabrications. (GPT-4)*

Abstract:* Encourages the recipient to nurture the love of God in the souls of the mentioned ladies and assures divine assistance in all matters. Explains the meaning of "leaving oneself" as renouncing earthly desires, human senses, and personal goals, instead seeking spiritual sustenance and attraction to the Divine Beauty. Clarifies the meaning of the hidden words related to the Covenant made at Mount Paran, stating that God takes a covenant from all souls in each Dispensation concerning the Promised One. Cites Moses taking the covenant of Christ on Mount Sinai for all souls that came during Christ's time. Emphasizes detachment from the self by not seeking anything from this fleeting world and offering oneself in the path of sacrifice. Confirms the correct syntax in a specific passage. Question: Why is the expression "He is God" used at the beginning of the Tablets and Epistles? Trans: BRL_TTT#04, TTCT.03-05. This is a common practice in the East among the Muslims, and their intent is that one must begin all things with the mention of God... Abstract: Explains the use of the phrase "He is God" at the beginning of tablets and letters. Clarifies that the true essence of divine unity is beyond human comprehension and imagination. Highlights that people often only worship their own idea of God, making them subject to illusions and thoughts. Discusses the importance of focusing on the Manifestations of God, as they are the only valid source of divine knowledge and guidance for humans. Conveys that the phrase "He is God" serves to acknowledge the Manifestation of God as the Sun of Truth and the source of divine mysteries and actions. (GPT-4)

Thou must raise aloft the banner of Bahá'u'lláh in London and become so aflame with the fire of the love of God as to rouse and stir every listless soul... Abstract:* Arrived in London and met with believers. Received no news from Miss Kröppler. Convey greetings to several people including Miss Rosenberg, General Jack, and others. Expresses always remembering them and praying for their success. Instructs to raise the banner of the Cause in London and ignite the flame of divine love. Urges to frequently send letters and reports about London. Warns against those who possess the golden key and are hypocrites. Advises to be cautious and not let these individuals influence them. Encourages befriending Mirza Lotfollah and gathering steadfast friends weekly for remembrance of God. Aims to attract and bring joy to the believers in London. Possibly visit London in the future. Mentions that Mr. Edward Brown has engaged with the enemies of the Cause and is spreading doubts, lies, and slander, but will soon regret it. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Counsels gratitude for divine gifts received and the strengthening of hearts in faith and certitude. Mentions a covenant established under the shade of a tree and a pact founded on the Day of Alast. Urges remembrance of the justice and kindness shown by the royal court and its attendants, and encourages prayers for the increase of the monarch's justice and the manifestation of divine assistance and victory. Encourages her to motivate Dr. Fischer to consider moving to a different city, particularly London, and promises to meet him during a future trip to Europe. Conveys love and greetings to the friends of Stuttgart, small children, and their mothers, urging the recipient to visit them again. Instructs her to share a message of gratitude to the spiritual children and daughters for God's blessings, including the opening of the gates of heaven, the bestowal of the divine Kingdom, and the infusion of the Holy Spirit. Celebrates various spiritual events, such as the outpouring of divine light, the shaking of earthly and heavenly powers, the eclipse of traditional beliefs and illusions, and the spread of God's celestial angels. Finally instructs her to speak with the support of the Holy Spirit and convey love to her fellow believers. (GPT-4)

Abstract: Emphasizes the importance of prayer and obedience to the authorities in matters of education at Dar al-Talim. Warns against involvement with foreign groups, even those promoting knowledge, as it may lead to political complications, and the people of Iran should handle the promotion of knowledge by themselves. Expresses the need for vigilance in

Abstract:* Summarizes a letter expressing grief over the financial difficulties of the recipient, but joy at the prospect of meeting friends and establishing gatherings. Emphasizes the importance of steadfastness throughout life. Clarifies the holy days of the Birth of Bahá'u'lláh and the Declaration of the Báb to be on the first and second days of Muharram, respectively. Asserts that engaging in worldly affairs is not permissible on the anniversary of the martyrdom of the Báb and the ascension of Bahá'u'lláh. (GPT-4)
